

Bedtime Story For the Little Ones

UNCLE WIGGILY AND BOB WHITE.

BY HOWARD R. GARIS.

UNCLE WIGGILY LONGEARS the nice rabbit gentleman, was hopping across the fields of his farm one morning, when, in a club of bushes that rustled in the wind, he heard a sad little voice crying:

"Oh dear! Oh dear! I'll never get out! In caught fast and I can't get loose. Fly to my little ones and my wife. Oh what shall I do? Oh dear!"

"My goodness me taken alive and some nice chemist upon a case!" cried Uncle Wiggily as he looked on all sides. "That's indeed a sad story. There is trouble here all right. I must see what I can do to help."

The never stopping to think that it might be the car-scratching cat or the all-pulling chimpanzee, Uncle Wiggily, brave old rabbit gentleman, that he was, hopped along until he saw a bird caught by a piece of string in a bush.

"Hello!" cried the rabbit gentleman. "As you my good friend the bluejay who hides across?"

"So I am Bob White," was the answer. "My other name is—"

"Never mind about your other name," said Uncle Wiggily quickly. "First I'd say you out of the tangle of string, and afterward you may talk. Now wait a minute."

And then, with the knife that he used to sharpen his pencil, Uncle Wiggily carefully cut the string that was tangled about the bluejay's feet and set it fluttering creature free.

"Now I will tell you about myself," said the bird. "Farmers call me Bob White, because when I whistle my song I say that is what it sounds like. But I am also called a quail, and there are many of my quail friends on your farm."

"You are very welcome to stay here," said Uncle Wiggily. "But what happened to you?"

"I was flying back to my wife and family, having gone to the woods for something for them to eat," said Bob White. "When I stumbled into the bush, there was some string tangled in it and before I knew it I was caught. But thanks to you, I am now free and I will fly home. And don't forget, if ever I can do you a favor I shall only be too glad to do it."

"Pray do not mention it," said Uncle Wiggily, polite and diffident like. "I was very glad to help you."

"Then the two started, the best of friends, and the rabbit gentleman hopped on over his farm to see what he could find growing and to make sure everything was all right."

"Well, I think all the crops are doing well," the rabbit gentleman said after a while, as he came to the end of his farm. "I will now hop back to my hollow stump house and see what Nurse Jane is getting ready for my supper."

And then, with the knife that he used to sharpen his pencil, Uncle Wiggily carefully cut the string that was tangled about the bluejay's feet and set it fluttering creature free.

"Now I will tell you about myself," said the bird. "Farmers call me Bob White, because when I whistle my song I say that is what it sounds like. But I am also called a quail, and there are many of my quail friends on your farm."

"You are very welcome to stay here," said Uncle Wiggily. "But what happened to you?"

"I was flying back to my wife and family, having gone to the woods for something for them to eat," said Bob White. "When I stumbled into the bush, there was some string tangled in it and before I knew it I was caught. But thanks to you, I am now free and I will fly home. And don't forget, if ever I can do you a favor I shall only be too glad to do it."

"Pray do not mention it," said Uncle Wiggily, polite and diffident like. "I was very glad to help you."

"Then the two started, the best of friends, and the rabbit gentleman hopped on over his farm to see what he could find growing and to make sure everything was all right."

"Well, I think all the crops are doing well," the rabbit gentleman said after a while, as he came to the end of his farm. "I will now hop back to my hollow stump house and see what Nurse Jane is getting ready for my supper."

And then, with the knife that he used to sharpen his pencil, Uncle Wiggily carefully cut the string that was tangled about the bluejay's feet and set it fluttering creature free.

"Now I will tell you about myself," said the bird. "Farmers call me Bob White, because when I whistle my song I say that is what it sounds like. But I am also called a quail, and there are many of my quail friends on your farm."

"You are very welcome to stay here," said Uncle Wiggily. "But what happened to you?"

"I was flying back to my wife and family, having gone to the woods for something for them to eat," said Bob White. "When I stumbled into the bush, there was some string tangled in it and before I knew it I was caught. But thanks to you, I am now free and I will fly home. And don't forget, if ever I can do you a favor I shall only be too glad to do it."

"Pray do not mention it," said Uncle Wiggily, polite and diffident like. "I was very glad to help you."

"Then the two started, the best of friends, and the rabbit gentleman hopped on over his farm to see what he could find growing and to make sure everything was all right."

"Well, I think all the crops are doing well," the rabbit gentleman said after a while, as he came to the end of his farm. "I will now hop back to my hollow stump house and see what Nurse Jane is getting ready for my supper."

And then, with the knife that he used to sharpen his pencil, Uncle Wiggily carefully cut the string that was tangled about the bluejay's feet and set it fluttering creature free.

"Now I will tell you about myself," said the bird. "Farmers call me Bob White, because when I whistle my song I say that is what it sounds like. But I am also called a quail, and there are many of my quail friends on your farm."

"You are very welcome to stay here," said Uncle Wiggily. "But what happened to you?"

"I was flying back to my wife and family, having gone to the woods for something for them to eat," said Bob White. "When I stumbled into the bush, there was some string tangled in it and before I knew it I was caught. But thanks to you, I am now free and I will fly home. And don't forget, if ever I can do you a favor I shall only be too glad to do it."

"Pray do not mention it," said Uncle Wiggily, polite and diffident like. "I was very glad to help you."

"Then the two started, the best of friends, and the rabbit gentleman hopped on over his farm to see what he could find growing and to make sure everything was all right."

"Well, I think all the crops are doing well," the rabbit gentleman said after a while, as he came to the end of his farm. "I will now hop back to my hollow stump house and see what Nurse Jane is getting ready for my supper."

And then, with the knife that he used to sharpen his pencil, Uncle Wiggily carefully cut the string that was tangled about the bluejay's feet and set it fluttering creature free.

"Now I will tell you about myself," said the bird. "Farmers call me Bob White, because when I whistle my song I say that is what it sounds like. But I am also called a quail, and there are many of my quail friends on your farm."

"You are very welcome to stay here," said Uncle Wiggily. "But what happened to you?"

"I was flying back to my wife and family, having gone to the woods for something for them to eat," said Bob White. "When I stumbled into the bush, there was some string tangled in it and before I knew it I was caught. But thanks to you, I am now free and I will fly home. And don't forget, if ever I can do you a favor I shall only be too glad to do it."

"Pray do not mention it," said Uncle Wiggily, polite and diffident like. "I was very glad to help you."

"Then the two started, the best of friends, and the rabbit gentleman hopped on over his farm to see what he could find growing and to make sure everything was all right."

"Well, I think all the crops are doing well," the rabbit gentleman said after a while, as he came to the end of his farm. "I will now hop back to my hollow stump house and see what Nurse Jane is getting ready for my supper."

And then, with the knife that he used to sharpen his pencil, Uncle Wiggily carefully cut the string that was tangled about the bluejay's feet and set it fluttering creature free.

"Now I will tell you about myself," said the bird. "Farmers call me Bob White, because when I whistle my song I say that is what it sounds like. But I am also called a quail, and there are many of my quail friends on your farm."

"You are very welcome to stay here," said Uncle Wiggily. "But what happened to you?"

"I was flying back to my wife and family, having gone to the woods for something for them to eat," said Bob White. "When I stumbled into the bush, there was some string tangled in it and before I knew it I was caught. But thanks to you, I am now free and I will fly home. And don't forget, if ever I can do you a favor I shall only be too glad to do it."

"Pray do not mention it," said Uncle Wiggily, polite and diffident like. "I was very glad to help you."

"Then the two started, the best of friends, and the rabbit gentleman hopped on over his farm to see what he could find growing and to make sure everything was all right."

"Well, I think all the crops are doing well," the rabbit gentleman said after a while, as he came to the end of his farm. "I will now hop back to my hollow stump house and see what Nurse Jane is getting ready for my supper."

And then, with the knife that he used to sharpen his pencil, Uncle Wiggily carefully cut the string that was tangled about the bluejay's feet and set it fluttering creature free.

"Now I will tell you about myself," said the bird. "Farmers call me Bob White, because when I whistle my song I say that is what it sounds like. But I am also called a quail, and there are many of my quail friends on your farm."

"You are very welcome to stay here," said Uncle Wiggily. "But what happened to you?"

"I was flying back to my wife and family, having gone to the woods for something for them to eat," said Bob White. "When I stumbled into the bush, there was some string tangled in it and before I knew it I was caught. But thanks to you, I am now free and I will fly home. And don't forget, if ever I can do you a favor I shall only be too glad to do it."

"Pray do not mention it," said Uncle Wiggily, polite and diffident like. "I was very glad to help you."

"Then the two started, the best of friends, and the rabbit gentleman hopped on over his farm to see what he could find growing and to make sure everything was all right."

"Well, I think all the crops are doing well," the rabbit gentleman said after a while, as he came to the end of his farm. "I will now hop back to my hollow stump house and see what Nurse Jane is getting ready for my supper."

And then, with the knife that he used to sharpen his pencil, Uncle Wiggily carefully cut the string that was tangled about the bluejay's feet and set it fluttering creature free.

"Now I will tell you about myself," said the bird. "Farmers call me Bob White, because when I whistle my song I say that is what it sounds like. But I am also called a quail, and there are many of my quail friends on your farm."

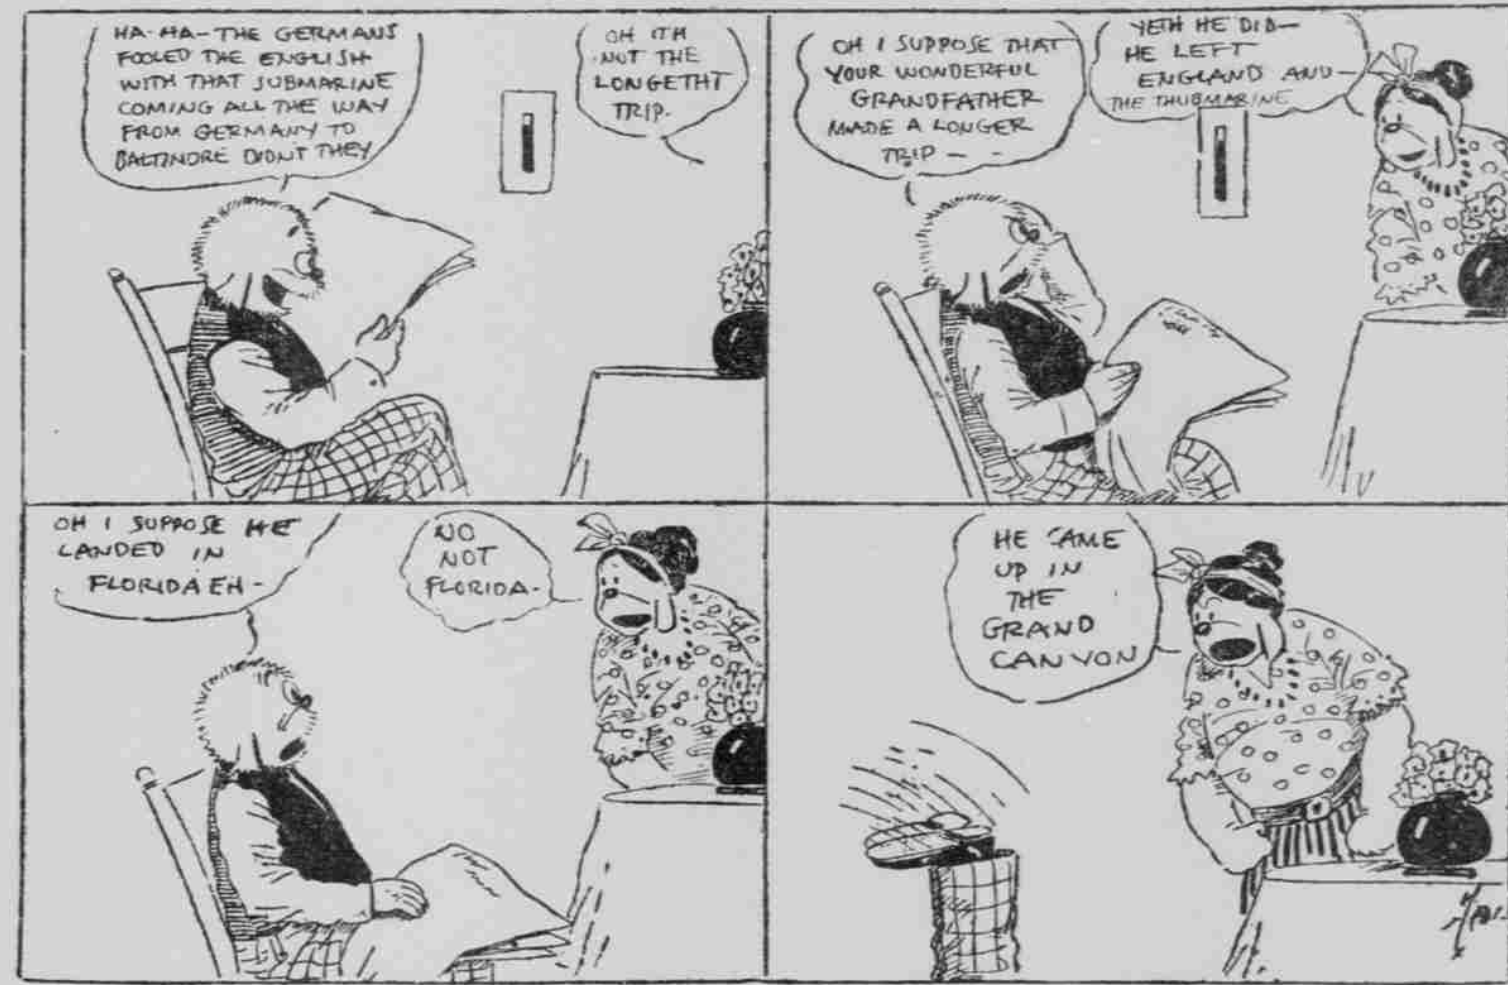

"You are very welcome to stay here," said Uncle Wiggily. "But what happened to you?"

"I was flying back to my wife and family, having gone to the woods for something for them to eat," said Bob White. "When I stumbled into the bush, there was some string tangled in it and before I knew it I was caught. But thanks to you, I am now free and I will fly home. And don't forget, if ever I can do you a favor I shall only be too glad to do it."

OLD JUDGE RUMHAUSER

BY TAD

Copyright 1916, International News Service—Registered United States Patent Office.

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

BY DAISY DEAN

"I LIKE motion pictures so well I don't care if I never appear on a speaking stage again." This is what Charles Richman said when asked his opinion about the artistic scope of the screen. And this, in face of the fact that he was one of the best known leading men and matinee idols on the legitimate stage.

Richman's first big parts came as leading man with A. M. Palmer's stock company, where his versatility, together with his natural talents, attracted the attention of Augustin Daly, who signed him for an engagement as leading man in his famous stock company to play opposite Ada Rehan. Mr. Richman then played in America at Daly's theater and in London. Then followed engagements as leading man with such well known theatrical stars as Annie Russell, Mrs. Langtry, Mary Manning and Blanche Bates.

When Richman was first asked to appear in motion pictures he was skeptical. His initial experience, however, dispelled all doubts, and made him a convert to the camera's lure. When Mr. Richman became a member of the Vitaphone Stock Players, he had a thorough knowledge of technical requirements. The pictures in which he starred under the Vitaphone banner include "Heights of Hazard," "The Battle of Britain," "The Hero of Submarine D-2," etc.

Billie Burke wasn't born in England, but in Washington, and she is 36 years old. Fanny Ward is 41 years old—and admits it.

Pearl White started life as a news girl and was one of the pioneer movie actors after she quit circus life.

Clive Kirke is a sister to Mona Thomas, of the line studios.

The Biograph release "Saved From Himself," released August 14, shows Mabel Normand in a serious role, playing opposite the late Joseph Graybill. Mr. Graybill, it will be remembered, was a young actor of unusual promise who died three years ago. He created the part of a feckless young man in the original production of "Brown of Harvard" with Harry Woodruff.

Admirers of the "cyclone" Eva Tanguay may expect to witness her in a five reeler entitled "Energetic Eve." She has been heard to refuse a company to utilize her, fearing that it might be "detrimental to my career." She just went to work and made a film for herself.

Prima Brunette says she has had many startling things happen to her in the course of her motion picture career, but never did she dream of being a bartender and saloon owner. This is what she has come to in the past she portrays in "The Preacher." In contrast of production by William Robert Daly.

Charles Richman.

Marie Dora has developed into a milliner of no slight distinction. In her latest photodrama, "Common Ground," which was recently completed under the direction of William De Mille, she takes one hat and makes 12 distinct models out of it. It is reported that the married man's club is to have a special room made of this process to be exhibited in their homes for the education of their wives and daughters.

KERR COUNTY SHERIFF TAKES DOUGLAS MAN BACK FOR TRIAL

Douglas, Aug. 25.—Sheriff J. T. Moore of Kerr county, Texas, has been in charge of Roy Glenn, who was wanted in Texas on a charge of carrying concealed weapons and of jumping the El Paso bond. Glenn has been in Arizona several years and now is manager of the business of a local cattle ranch.

Use HORMONAL Vaid Phosphate

A teaspoonful to a glass of water not only neutralizes the alkali, but makes the beverage a refreshing one.

Soldiers' Civilian: When you want a prompt, reliable Auto or Taxi Service, call 2500. Careful drivers, reasonable charges. City Service Co. Bagnose 700. —Adv.

Beauty Chats By Edna Kent Forbes

A Sanitary Dress Shield

A BLESSING TO EVERY WOMAN who perspires over much is the blotting board shield. We all know how the rubber shield adds to the heating of the skin, making an active skin unhealthily so during the hours of wearing a shield. Still, rather than risk ruining a fine dress, or looking untidy, women have had to suffer from this excessive heating, even to the point of chafing. Of course, the rubber shield is here to stay, as its service is an established certainty; but, to the women who do not mind the work of making up a supply of blotting board protectors, this novelty comes as a cleaner and more comfortable method of protecting the skin and summer fabrics.

The picture shows exactly the shape, but if a pattern is required, take the rubber shield and make it double as these are, so that one flap goes into the sleeve and the other into the waist, while the seam comes around the armpit. The line of crosses in the sketch indicates the shape for the cutting. If the wearer is badly troubled with perspiring armpits, it is a wise precaution to run a line of passe par tout, giving it as a tape around the seam of the shield where it comes in contact with the hollow under the arm. Quantities of shields may be made from twenty-five cents worth of blotting board, and they may be thrown away as fast as they are unpleasant, keeping the clothing free from the unpleasant odor of perspiration.

It is well to remember, too, that a rubber shield should be changed often; in fact, every day in warm weather, and given a thorough scrubbing in cool water. A deodorizer dropped into the rinse water will also sweeten the shield, so it will not retain any of the former unpleasantness as soon as the skin begins to act upon it again.

Questions and Answers

My face has brown spots on it and I hear that coconut and soda, taken regularly, will remove this trouble. Would you advise it?—Ellen Smith.

Copyright by George Matthew Adams

14 YEARS AGO TODAY

From The Herald of This Date, 1902.

THE smaller car line of the El Paso street railway was formally opened to the public this morning.

On the initial trip over the line, manager H. T. Edgar and superintendent Logan had as their guests a number of city and county officials, to whom they explained the beauties of the new line.

Among the guests were Mayor R. F. Hammett, aldermen O. H. Baum and W. J. Hand.

Land county attorney Henry Kemp, county assessor Huffman, and city tax collector Ben F. Jenkins.

T. M. Wingo left for Kansas City last night on business.

Chief of police White returned this morning from Galveston, where he was in attendance at the state Democratic convention.

According to reports received in the city, company B, fourth Texas infantry, from El Paso, is making an excellent impression in the state encampment at Austin.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Emerson gave a trolley party to a number of their friends last evening, leaving their residence, Main avenue and Boulevard, at 8:30 o'clock.

Charles M. Newman returned yesterday from a trip to Wyoming and Montana where he delivered 1000 head of two year old steers from the Terraza ranches in Mexico.

Mrs. R. C. Anderson, who was so severely injured by being thrown out of a buggy several days ago, is getting along very nicely, having been removed to her home from the hospital.

Considerable damage was done to property in the Big Springs country, which was flooded, according to advices received today in the city. At Big Springs several days ago, is getting along very nicely, having been removed to her home from the hospital.

Four special street cars have been chartered by the Jolly Kats club for the blizzard which will be held tonight, several miles outside of the city. Among the guests at the blizzard will be Gov. Michael Ahumada, of the state of Chihuahua, and his entire staff, who are visiting in this city and Durango.

The manufacturers' committee of the chamber of commerce met yesterday afternoon with S. M. Schwartz, of Cincinnati, to consider his proposition of locating a cotton mill in this vicinity. A committee of the following persons was named for the purpose of looking over a site: H. R. Wood, Z. T. White, mayor H. P. Hammett, R. May, A. P. Cole, H. P. Noble, C. R. Stevens and Alvin and Crowe.

Mexicans rents a specialty. Ph. 4501. —Adv.

No Pain

By this new method we can take your impressions in the morning and give you your teeth in the evening. We can do this work—at any month; make a plate stick to a piece of gum on a piece of glass. So strong you can stand on them. Let us show you this.

No more

Best made Bridge and

Crown

All Work Guaranteed in Writing

For Ten Years.

NEW SYSTEM DENTAL

PARLORS

Cor. El Paso and San Antonio

Sts.—over Savings Bank—newly renovated old First Nat. Bank

Bldg. Office Hours, 9:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. Sunday hours, 10 a.

m. to 11 a. m.

Two Lady Attendants.

Spanish and German Spoken.